Washington, DC Educational Tour

— Washington, DC - 5 Days

Visitors from around the world come to Washington to be surrounded and inspired by the city's grandeur and history. America's capital is not all about history and monuments, but is a vibrant cultural city boasting beautiful architecture, world-class museums and eclectic neighborhoods. From the iconic U.S. Capitol Building to trendy Georgetown boutiques, today's Washington has something for everyone.

Our five-day program in the nation's capital uses the city's famous monuments and museums to help bring classroom learning alive. Activities aimed at young people - including a bike tour, scavenger hunt, and neighborhood dining and shopping - help students fully engage with the city and experience.

Students will work in small teams to develop a video project focusing on a key episode or issue in U.S. history and how that issue is viewed today in America. Students will use their cell phones, creativity and ideas to obtain and combine footage from their site visits with interviews of their peers, teachers, guides and representatives from our educational tour in DC.

After returning home, students will finalize work on these projects, editing them into a short video documentary of their trip that highlights the issue and personal and academic insights they gained on their DC trip.

Experience America and Miller's Hill School will throw a debrief event that will bring students from the tour group back together for fun, and to share their video projects with their community. These projects be posted to Miller's Hill School social media and websites to share the amazing program experience and showcase student learning!
